WEEK 3 REPORT

Mostly Mainers League

Prepared by 2026

Executive summary

The rich stay rich; the poor stay poor. Two undefeated teams remain, while the two bottom feeders still struggle to find their first win. A few streak breaking matchups this week proved that its still anyone's game. There is ZERO AI in the production of this Newsletter after a massive plummet in ratings and viewer retention from last week's rushed release.

Official Week 3 Standings

I removed team names from the weekly standings. Too many changes to keep up with. For full list of name changes, please view our "meet the managers" page on the Mostly Mainers website.

Week 3 Superlatives

Manager of the Week: Liam Ellingwood

After struggling to find his groove during the first two weeks, Liam locked in securing his first win and scoring an A+ rating against seasoned fantasy veteran.

Tough Luck Purple Heart: Will Hegarty

Will was projected to beat Liam this week, and even after almost reaching his projection, still fell short of the goal line thanks to Liam surpassing his own projection by a massive 37 points. Will would've beat just under half of the teams with his performance this week.

Toilet Bowl Pacesetter: Bowen Redgate

Self proclaimed "loser of the league" Bowen is heartbroken after his third loss in a row, with this early performance, he is on pace for one of the worst seasons of his career. For just pennies a day, you can help support a manager like Bowen achieve his dreams of winning 1 game.

Matchup Breakdowns

Draxx Them Sklounst (Sam) def. Hiroshima Handjobs (Bowen) 152.14 - 88.88

The Storyline: The rich get richer.

Sam's powerhouse remains undefeated moving into week 4. JSN once again proves why he is the number 1 WR for fantasy, dancing past (and nearly doubling) his projected points. Almost the entirety of Sam's bench was seeing doubles and triples this week, not that it mattered, as only 3 of Bowen's players reached their projections.

Joseph Stalin (Joe) def. Saac Man (Isaac) 126.40 - 96.96

The Storyline: No rest (week) for the wicked.

Joe's engines are really starting to kick into gear, facing the most difficult schedule this year, he has had to outperform projections just to stay break even, this week he did exactly that. Meanwhile, Isaac is kicking himself for leaving a whopping 72 points on his bench, proving to everyone that you can't always trust projections.

Matt's Malicious Gooners (Matt) def. Danny's Dongers (Danny) 127.88 – 106.62

The Storyline: Matt goons Danny's dong.

Matt's gooners had quite the scoreline, Jahmyr Gibbs showing out with explosive 37.90 points all on his own. Excluding the above average performances from Jaylen Warren and James Cook III, Danny's dongers fizzled out.. The only question on everyone's mind now is: does Matt have enough QB depth on his team?

Billiam Chuzz Fancyson (Liam) def Baddie Butch Lezbo Liams (Will) 148.98 – 111.64

The Storyline: Liam says "I see it now".

After a rough start from Liam, his main character anime energy kicked in this week. He faced off against an unbeatable foe, looked at his hands, and said "I see it now", before unleashing Purdy and Robinson in full force. While he left major tight end points on his bench, he still finished 2nd in overall score this week. Will's average performance just couldn't handle the sudden gear 5 power surge from Liam's team.

Rough Landing (Garrett) def. 2009 Garrett/Comeback Imminent (Ben) 131.66 – 74.16

The Storyline: Garrett rides tall, Ben continues to fall.

Another wild week from Ben. Scoring an all time low point record for the season, he cannot seem to find a win. Ben's "star player" Drake Maye had an ungodly 5.76 points, and Jadarian Price didn't even come close to his projections. While Garrett's Patriots defense netted a -1 score this week, the rest of his team showed up to outweigh the deficit. His star players this week were Ja'Marr Chase and Matthew Golden.

Commissioner's Corner

While the commissioner didn't have an official statement ready for the release this week, he did mention that it seems managers still aren't using the trades and waivers as much as they should… but also, who's going to listen to a guy who keeps losing? "Not me" says newsletter editor Sam Bourget.

The Rumor Mill

Commissioner's Integrity In Question:
This was submitted to the Mostly Mainers website by an anonymous source -
Our commissioner tried to meet with a 13 year old boy at Arby's (we have the meats) resturant. Multiple witnesses were paid off and the victim was Incinerated hours after. This can not get swept under the rug. He needs to be stopped.

The League Pot:
In week 1, there was a joke made about the league winnings being invested in bitcoin. It has been brought to the editor's attention that this was NOT in fact a joke. League Treasurer Isaac confirmed Tuesday morning that he is using league funds for his own investment portfolio, with intentions of only giving back to the league what he took, not including winnings. The pool is currently up $13.

Week 3 Manager Press Conference

Danny: "We had a good un. See you at the bottom"
Bowen: "Someone offer me a trade or I will take my own life by week 5. 4th straight week I'm projected to win. Bring on the agony. #1 picks in both of my leagues are out for the year."
Matt: "Another week, another win"
Isaac: "It was a challenging week. My team just didn't show up. Very disappointed in my guys. At least this week I have a break since I'm playing Bowen's sorry team."
Garrett: "Playing Ben in fantasy is as easy as flying a plane."
Ben: "Our organization is well aware of the shortcomings in the past weeks. We're working on our faults and building team spirit. Do not count us out yet."
Will: "I'm just here so I don't get fined." THIS IS ALL WE COULD GET AFTER PRESSURE FROM PATRIOTS TEAM OWNER ROBERT KRAFT PUBLICLY PRESSURED WILL HEGARTY TO STEP DOWN AS COMMISIONNER. This was caused by his "antisemitic" Netanyahu comment last week.
Liam: "Fortunate enough to go against an even worse team than mine this week, I knew the boys were gonna pull through. Pretty easy one for the guys. Thanks for the practice Billiam."

Joe: No comment from Joe this week.

Week 4 Preview

Following a mistake from last week, the weekly preview has been simplified:

Sam (3-0-0) vs Will (1-2-0)
Isaac (2-1-0) vs Bowen (0-3-0)
Matt (2-1-0) vs Joe (2-1-0)
Garrett (3-0-0) vs Danny (1-2-0)
Liam (1-2-0) vs Ben (0-3-0)
