Week 6 Superlatives

Manager of the Week: Bowen

Bowen earned his first win of the league in a huge upset against league leader Garrett. After struggling to find his groove, Bowen proved to all the haters that he belongs in this league. After his press conference last week, many wondered if it was just a big ruse to mislead the league. Either way, he took down the last undefeated manager. This superlative is completely unrelated to the Redgate files.

Biggest Cornball: Ben

The people have spoken; we counted 25 million votes from Mostly Mainers league fans across America. It was a unanimous and uncontested decision. This superlative is completely unrelated to his victory over the current interim commissioner and executive editor of the Mostly Mainers newsletter.

Bench Flex: Isaac

Isaac had a total of 56.78 points from his bench players (and still won). Reports show that the changes to Isaac's lineup came after make-a-wish reached out to him. Unfortunately, intentionally shaving his max score from 123.60 down to the 98.90 just wasn't enough to make Matt's dreams come true.

Matchup Breakdowns

Sams Big Papa (Ben) def. Draxx Them Sklounst (Sam) 113.60 – 110.84
Storyline: Guerilla warfare 101: The art of the Ambush

If you, holding a stone, know your enemy holds a flamethrower, you don't face him head on. You wait for him to walk past before launching your stone at the gas tank strapped to his back. The powerhouse led by Sam faced their second loss, this time in a major upset against one of the league's most underestimated teams. Ben's plan was simple, let his opponent hit projections and exhaust his lineup on Sunday night, to open the chance to swoop in for the kill on Monday. Trevor Lawrence held the spot as highest scoring individual player across every team in the league this week, but it was Ben's supporting cast difference that put the final nail in Sam's coffin.

Eat my organic 💩 dr dan (Will) def. Danny's Dongers (Danny) 115.58 – 103.88
Storyline: Defense is the best offense.

Danny's downfall this week was the inequality in his DEF matchup against Will. Chiefs defense went crazy this week with only 6 points allowed, 4 sacks, and an interception, totaling 15 points vs Danny's 2. Danny covered his QB's deficiencies with his WR slots, but with nothing to match Will's defense, he struggled to keep up the entire time.

It's important to note that Will only changed his name after he knew he was going to win.

Saac Man (Isaac) def. Matt's Malicious Gooners (Matt) 98.90 – 88.18
Storyline: Bo Nix Blows Dix.

The lowest combined scoring matchup of the week. Both teams fell substantially below their projected points goals. No player quite captures the essence of Matt's performance better than Bo Nix, who scored the lowest amount of points out of every playing QB across the entire NFL this week… Matt's kicker doubled Nix's points. Isaac got off lucky this week, he will need everything from his all-stars Allen and Lamb in upcoming weeks to retain his position.

Joseph Stalin (Joe) def. Joes Daddy (Liam) 135.40 – 106.66
Storyline: When life gives you eggs, make an omelet.

Joe finds a break in his cursed schedule this week, leading the league in score and finally not getting outshined by his opponent. Skattebo and Johnson both dropped eggs (or zero points for the fantasy newcomers) for their respective managers, but overall, both teams still performed relatively well. Solid performances from both teams' kickers and defenses. Joe's WR/RB pairs picked up the slack better than Liam's did, giving him the clear upper hand.

I love Picken' Flowers (Bowen) def. Rough Landing (Garrett) 106.64 – 84.30
Storyline: 2 managers help each other lose their virginities.

During the passionate throes of fantasy football, someone is bound to get hurt. On one side, stood a king and his horse, both covered head to toe in ornate golden armor. On the other side, knelt a beggar, with poorly sewn scraps of various fabrics loosely held together across his back. This was the make-or-break point for both teams.

The difference maker this game was Bowen's RB slot, relatively even across all other positions, Bowen's combine RB score of 37.6 blew Garrett's measly 12.7 out of the water. The question now remains; will these managers pick up where they left off? Or has a new trend begun? Only time will tell in the theater of the damned.

Commissioner's Corner

Important Trade Notice:

Keep in mind that waiver wires close on Wednesday nights. Everyone has a budget of $100 to put on players. For those of you who have yet to make any trades, keep in mind it's not a bad idea to look occasionally just to see who's available.

Looking at the value a certain player brings is a huge part of the manager's role on a fantasy team. Without proper calculations and considerations paid in your team's off time, you may end up missing a big opportunity. I am giving $100 to the player in fourth place if he reads this by 12 am on October 27th. If he doesn't read it, everyone else gets $5, so do not tell him. To be eligible for the winnings, text me great write up on the importance of waiver trades.

The Rumor Mill

Auburn Mall Update – Men or Mice?

Managers Ben and Isaac spotted "acting girly" at the Auburn mall. These reports surfaced after Buffalo Wild Wings employees kicked them out for odd behavior. Official police reports show the pair requesting "just salt" on their wings, insisting that anything else is "just too spicy". Investigators then tracked the suspects to Spencer's where they were seen buying removable tails, then to Claire's where they were spotted trying on clip-on earrings. They drove off shortly after in a hot pink VW beetle with a "bite me" vampire themed bumper sticker.

Week 6 Manager Press Conference

Ben: "Great week for the guys. Played against a strong opponent and came out on top. Looking forward to bring the same energy to Danny."

Sam: "Leaked footage of Ben at work: Horses Need Water"

Matt: "I gave my starters a week off after seeing my opponent (Isaac). Honestly a miracle he managed to win, like.. have you seen his team… Anyways, brushed it off. Head held high anticipating this upcoming week's victory."

Liam: "There's a losers bracket, right?

Danny: "Well, the injections in the players knees gave our quarterback a blood clot. I don't know where the fuck our shaman went. Lost all our good mojo and got beat by Big Will. No I don't care if that's a strike."

Will: "Instagram Video"

Garrett: "I might go missing just saying this but the redgate files are real.. I was forced to lose this week for my safety.. be careful everyone."

Isaac: "Matt Fluffington posed no real threat. My guys stepped up big time. Huge W."

Bowen: "In every universe David always beats goliath."

Joe: "Sam is genuinely one of the smartest and most handsome people I have ever met."

Week 7 Preview

Sam (4-2-0) vs Matt (4-2-0)

Tied records after week 6, can Sam keep Matt out of the top 3?

Will (4-2-0) vs Joe (3-3-0)

Battle of brothers begins, the best brother better bash the other brother.
